◆ Pressed by his friend Vittorio GUI, Furtwängler agreed to conduct Tristan for the opening of the Maggio Musicale festival in Florence. According to the newspapers of the time, a trivial sporting accident prevented Furtwängler from conducting an opera for the first time in Italy. He was replaced by the conductor Gino Marinuzzi, who conducted Tristan on 1, 4 and 8 May 1941 with a cast: that included Max Lorenz (Tristan), Ludwig Weber (Marcke), Erna Schlüter (Isolde), and Elisabeth Höngen (Brangane).

◆ Pressé par son ami Vittorio GUI, Furtwängler accepta de diriger le Tristan pour l'ouverture du Maggio Musicale Fiorentino à Florence. Selon la presse de l'époque, un simple accident sportif empêcha Furtwängler de diriger son premier opéra en Italie. Il fut remplacé par Gino Marinuzzi qui dirigea le Tristan le 1, 4 et 8 mai 1941 avec Max Lorenz (Tristan), Ludwig Weber (Marcke), Erna Schlüter (Isolde) et Elisabeth Höngen (Brangane).

He will conduct it 8 times during this month with Bockelmann and Prohaska as Sachs.» He is mistaken. In fact, the Première took place on 12, with Bockelmann, and Wilhelm Furtwängler conducted another performance on 16 December with Prohaska. The December activity of the State Opera/Staatsoper was as follows:

10 and 11: dress rehearsal of Meistersinger; 12: Première; 13: evening of chamber music; 14: closed; 15: Orphée et Eurydice; 16: Meistersinger; 17 and 18: closed; 19: Orphée et Eurydice; 20: evening of chamber music; 21: closed; 22: Freischütz; 23 and 24: closed; 25: Fidelio; 26: der Rosenkavalier; 27: le Nozze di Figaro; 29 and 30: closed; 31: le Nozze di Figaro

¹ Gilbert von Studniz published the following message on 3rd May 2005 on the guestbook of the Société Wilhelm Furtwängler: "(...) my uncle Karlrobert Kreiten was not Jewish, but a Dutch subject whose family had been Catholic for as long as records exist. Furtwänglers deep friendship with the Kreiten family was well established, in fact I still have postcards and letters from him, especially to my grandmother Emmy Kreiten." As of May 2005, a website in German is dedicated to Kreiten artistry: www.fkoester.de/kreiten (Furtwängler is mentioned on page 2 and 9 of the section "Pianist")

♦ In May, the newspaper L'illustrazione italiana wrote: «The well known Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra and his Musical Director Wilhelm Furtwängler will be the protagonists in a film produced by Tobis. Paul Verhoeven will be the stage manager. The music of Bruckner, Beethoven and Liszt will not only be the only sound commentary of the film, but it will also constitute the film's structure on the same line as the American film Fantasia, produced by Walt Disney». Sadly, this film was never produced.

♦ En mai, la revue L'illustrazione italiana écrit : «La fameuse Philharmonie de Berlin et son chef Wilhelm Furtwängler seront les protagonistes d'un film produit par Tobis. Paul Verhoeven sera le metteur en scène. La musique de Bruckner, Beethoven et Liszt ne sera pas uniquement le commentaire sonore du film mais constituera aussi sa structure sur la base du film américain Fantasia, produit par Walt Disney». Malheureusement, ce film ne fut jamais produit.

♦ On 4 May, a musical evening was held in honour of the «Staatsrat» Furtwängler in the Abbey of Sankt Florian.

SEASON 1944 - 1945

11 October, Abbey of Sankt Florian (Linz Bruckner Orchestra)

Bruckner: Symphony No. 9

♦ Furtwängler conducted this short-lived orchestra only once (June 1943 to May 1945). The principal conductor was Georg-Ludwig Jochum, one of the three Jochum Brothers. With this orchestra and the Bruckner choir of Linz (conducted by Günther Ramin), Hitler wanted to produce the musical programmes of the «Radio of Great Germany». The Linz Bruckner Orchestra was also called the Führer's Orchestra.
